

Dear Readers and Writers;

Our journal JENAS puts the first point towards the ecosystem with this issue.

As a result of the fact that we live on the same planet, we are proud to be with you in a scientific format for the sustainability of our common ground.

In December 2019, we sincerely wish that we put into nature and the environment in scientific format will create new lightning and new synergies in our science and academic community.

After nearly 3 months of preparation, we have prepared are journal for the articulation of mankind to civilization accumulation and development of the world heritage, not in a region, but in a globe.

We believe that our journal, which was founded and published in 2019, started the breakthrough process in 2020. With this momentum, it will have a right to say in the world scientific community by 2023.

Dear Academicians,

International Journal of Environmental and Natural Studies (JENAS) started this issue. Its publication life in December 2019 as a new journal where environmental problems and solution proposals will be discussed through related disciplines.

Black Sea Nature and Environment Association (KADOÇED) will publish JENAS which includes the studies focused on Natural Sciences, Environmental Sciences and Urban Sciences such as Geography, Biology, Landscape, Urban Planning, Public Administration, Environmental Engineering etc.

Our journal is internationally peer-reviewed and the article language is English. Author guidelines and article templates can be found on the website of the journal. The deadline submission of articles for the next issue has been extended until March, July, November.

We look forward to evaluating your original articles and wish you success in your studies.

Stay bright, hoping to meet in bright tomorrows.

On Behalf of The Editorial Board

Assit.Prof.Dr. Ahmet FİDAN